

FIRST NATIONS PARTNERSHIP

July 8, 2010

Dear Ministry Partner,

Thank you for partnering with NAIM in exciting Acts 1:8 kinds of opportunities this summer. Leading youth camps, teaching in local Native Fellowships, and going across cultural ethnic lines with the Gospel written in their own lives and words defines the work God has called First Nations working alongside NAIM missionaries to engage.

First Nations Christians are taking their rightful, but largely yet unclaimed role, in the Great Commission in our generation. Could this reflect God's promise in Isaiah 61:7-8 to His chosen Hebrew tribes... and maybe His heart for the First Nations of our continent today?

Globally, Native people are one of the most highly respected ethnic groups all over the world. History and resilience to cultural genocide have given them credibility and a voice in places where most of us in this generation would not be accepted.

Your gift to NAIM's First Nations Partnership is like seed for the coming Harvest. First Nations people in Canada and other ethnic people around the world are hearing the Gospel through Native voices as First Nations workers tell their stories and earn the right to tell Jesus' story in places where you and I often cannot.

Thank you for praying and sharing in this exciting faith adventure alongside NAIM's First Nations colleagues, doing together what we cannot do without one another.

Gratefully alongside,

Don and Mary DeHart
